HILLTOP ECHOES

1930

VOLUME VI

*Published by the Students of Davenport College
Lenoir, N. C.*

Foreword

FROM the time of crinolines and coaches, spinning wheels and spinets, we have chosen the sampler as an old-fashioned theme for this modern book of ours.

Into this composite picture we have stitched records of vivid events, pleasant places, and charming characters, with all the love which our colonial grandmothers lavished on their needlework.

May our work remain for us as their's has—a beautiful pattern of the past.

The College

*"Where smiling spring its earliest visit paid,
And parting summer's lingering blooms delayed."*

*"Like thoughts whose very sweetness yielded proof,
These lofty pillars spread the branching roof."*

*"Next whereunto there stands a stately place,
Where oft I gayned giftes and goodly grace."*

*"This brick built pile doth maps and books display,
Which learning's tenement doth plain betray."*

*"His house was known to all the happy train
Who wished both peace and comfort to attain."*

*"How often have I loitered o'er thy green,
Where simple happiness endeared each scene."*

Echoes From the Air

Inez Leinbach (to roommate who has just been to the beauty parlor):
"Why such a short haircut?"

Eva Beam: "I didn't get a haircut. I had it washed and it shrunk up."

* * *

It must be a blessing to be color-blind at Christmas. Just think of all the holly that would be mistaken for mistletoe.

* * *

Every correspondence school student carries a pair of scissors to aid him in cutting classes.

* * *

Geology Instructor: "Do you know what caused the Grand Canyon?"

Lottie Hardin: "Yes, a Scotchman lost a dime in a gopher hole."

* * *

Jerry: "Gee, I'm sick. I feel like I'm about to die."

Kirk Love: "Better put in your application for leave, then, so you can attend your funeral."

* * *

Forrest Hastings has started thinking again, and this time wants to know if the national bird of the Turks is not a turkey.

* * *

Martha: "Bacteria are the world's greatest mathematicians."

Miss Ump: "How's that?"

Martha: "They multiply by dividing."

* * *

Jay: "Do you know the 'Gorilla Song'?"

Ethel: "Why no, I don't believe—"

Jay: "Gorilla my dreams I love you."
